sudden summer rain
raindrops splatter on windows –
a baby's heartbeat

A gentle raindrop Settles on a leaf's green face, Nature's watercolor

With each haiku, Dunbar paints a vivid canvas of the natural world, evoking a sense of wonder and awe. From the delicate flutter of a butterfly to the majestic roar of the ocean, the poet captures the essence of the natural world with a keen eye for detail and a deep appreciation for its beauty.

Navigating the Tides of Race

Beyond the serene landscapes of nature, Dunbar's haibun lays bare the complexities of race and identity in a society grappling with prejudice and discrimination. These poignant prose poems explore the experiences of African Americans in the late 19th century:

A young boy walks past White children taunting his skin, Heart heavy with pain

Dunbar's haibun exposes the cruel realities of racism while also celebrating the resilience and strength of the human spirit. Through these powerful narratives, he invites us to confront the injustices of the past and present and to work towards a more equitable future.

Exploring the Depths of the Human Heart

Reckon is not just a collection of poems; it is a profound exploration of the human heart. Dunbar's haiku and haibun delve into the complexities of human emotions, from love and longing to sorrow and regret:

Love's flame once burned bright, Now embers smolder, cold and gray, Memories remain

Through his evocative imagery and introspective prose, Dunbar unravels the tangled threads of the human heart, revealing our capacity for both joy and heartbreak. His words resonate with a universality that transcends time and culture, connecting us all in our shared experiences of love, loss, and the relentless pursuit of meaning.
