The Old School House With The Tree is a captivating novel that explores the themes of love, loss, and redemption. Set in a small town in the American Midwest, the story follows the lives of three generations of women who are connected by the old school house and the tree that stands in its yard.

The novel begins in the early 1900s, with the story of Sarah, a young woman who dreams of becoming a teacher. When the new school house is built, Sarah is hired as the first teacher. She quickly falls in love with the town and its people, and she soon meets the man who will become her husband.

The middle section of the novel follows the story of Sarah's daughter, Mary. Mary grows up in the shadow of the school house and the tree, and she comes to believe that the tree has magical powers. When Mary falls in love with a man from another town, she is torn between her love for him and her loyalty to her family.

The final section of the novel follows the story of Mary's daughter, Susan. Susan is a successful businesswoman who returns to her hometown after her mother's death. She is haunted by the memories of her childhood, and she is determined to find out the truth about the tree.

The Old School House With The Tree is a beautifully written novel that will stay with you long after you finish reading it. The characters are complex and well-developed, and the story is both heartbreaking and heartwarming.
