Friedman begins by examining the history of empires. He argues that all empires eventually fall, and that the United States is no exception. However, he also believes that the United States has the potential to be a different kind of empire, one that is based on cooperation and shared values rather than on conquest and domination.

Friedman then turns his attention to the challenges facing the United States in the 21st century. He argues that the greatest threats to our future are inequality and climate change. Inequality is tearing our society apart, and climate change is threatening our planet. We need to address these challenges head-on if we want to ensure our future prosperity and security.

Friedman concludes by offering a vision for the future of the United States. He believes that we can create a more just and equitable society, and that we can lead the world in addressing the challenges of climate change. However, he also warns that we need to make some tough choices if we want to achieve these goals.

The World According to Us is a timely and important book. It is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the challenges facing the United States in the 21st century.
